KIP MARTIN'S SYMMETRY DANCE WELLNESS

Just because you aren't a classically trained dancer doesn't mean you can't have the body of one. Waltz over to Kip Martin's Symmetry Dance Wellness and pirouette your way to a long, lean silhouette. Try the Bale'ates class, a combo Pilates and Ballet class which will leave you feeling flexible, give you a tight core, and banish that slouchy posture once and for all. 2013 Sansom Street, dancwellness.com

5

PHILADELPHIA MUSEUM OF ART

Give Rocky a run for his money by sprinting up the famed steps in your stilettos before setting well-heeled foot inside the Philadelphia Museum of Art to exercise your creativity with knockout art collections. Across the street is the Perelman Building, which houses the institution's more modern works. Be sure to check out the "Shopping in Paris: French Fashion 1850-1925" exhibit—but hurry, because come winter this exhibit will be so last season. 26th Street and the Benjamin Franklin Parkway, philamuseum.org

CONTINENTAL

Who says excess has to end at dawn? Keep the spirit of a wild night on the town alive by indulging in a tiramisu waffle featuring chocolate and mascarpone cream for brunch at the ever-decadent Continental. Looking to get a jump start on the festivities? Wake up with the Midtown Mocha, an eye-opening caffeine cocktail featuring espresso vodka and a chocolate dipped cookie stick. The perfect way to wrap up or kick start a night to remember. 138 Market Street, continentalmartinibar.com
